TONIGHT'S GAME

Pittsburgh opens its 2018 preseason schedule tonight by visiting the Buffalo Sabres at KeyBank Center. Last year the Penguins went 3-0 against the Sabres during the regular season, which improved Pittsburgh's unbeaten stretch against the Sabres to 15 games (14-0-1) dating back to October 5, 2013.

Although tonight's game will not be broadcast live in the Pittsburgh region, fans have two opportunities to watch the game when it re-airs on the NHL Network tomorrow, September 19 at 1:00 AM and 12:00 PM. Fans can listen to the game live on the team's official radio flagship, 105.9 The X. Josh Getzoff and Phil Bourque will call the action.

BROADCAST INFO

AT&T SportsNet will broadcast one Pittsburgh Penguins preseason game – the September 22 home game against the Columbus Blue Jackets at 3:00 PM at PPG Paints Arena. Steve Mears will handle play-by-play duties for the game alongside color commentator Bob Errey and rinkside reporter Dan Potash.

The Penguins will stream their other two home games – Sunday, September 23 against Detroit and Wednesday, September 26 versus Buffalo – on pittsburghpenguins.com. Only fans who live in the local Pittsburgh/AT&T SportsNet region will be able to access the stream.

NHL Network will be televising the September 19 game against Detroit.

All six Penguins preseason games can be heard on the team's official radio flagship, 105.9 The X. Hall of Fame broadcaster Mike Lange will call the "Free Game for Kids" on September 23 against Detroit alongside Phil Bourque. Josh Getzoff will call the other five games alongside Bourque.

SULLIVAN MOURNS FATHER'S PASSING

Penguins head coach Mike Sullivan will not be behind the bench tonight, as he is away from the team following the passing of his father, George Sullivan, on September 15.

The Penguins issued the following statement following George's passing:

The Pittsburgh Penguins offer our deepest sympathy to Mike Sullivan and his family on the passing of Mike's father, George, today.

He was 81. The Sullivans appreciate the excellent care he was given at Cardigan Nursing Home in Scituate, Massachusetts.

Mike will be taking a few days away from the team to be with his family. Assistant coach Jacques Martin will oversee the day-to-day duties of the coaching staff during this time.

ROSTER CONTINUITY

When the Penguins announced their 2018-19 training camp roster, it featured 19 players from last season's playoff roster. Captain Sidney Crosby headlines the list, as he begins his 14th season coming off of a dominating playoff run that saw him produce nine goals and 21 points in 12 games. Also back are Evgeni Malkin, the Penguins' leading scorer during last year's regular season with 98 points, and Phil Kessel, who is coming off a career-best 92-point campaign. Also returning are alternate captain Kris Letang and goaltender Matt Murray.

Of the 19 returning players from last year's playoff roster, 14 have won Stanley Cup championships. Players with three Cups include: Crosby, Malkin, Letang and Matt Cullen; those with two are: Brian Dumoulin, Olli Maatta, Justin Schultz, Carl Hagelin, Patric Hornqvist, Phil Kessel, Bryan Rust and Murray; and players with one Cup are Jake Guentzel and Chad Ruhwedel.

NEW FACES

General manager Jim Rutherford made a couple of additions to his lineup this summer. The major move was adding blueliner Jack Johnson, formerly a member of the Columbus Blue Jackets, on a five-year contract. The veteran of 788 career NHL games adds a physical component to Pittsburgh's back end. He was originally drafted by Rutherford with the third-overall pick of the 2005 NHL Draft when Rutherford was GM of the Carolina Hurricanes.

Matt Cullen, who is lacing up his skates for a 21st season this year, returns to Pittsburgh for a second tour of duty. He played last year for his hometown Minnesota Wild. Cullen won Stanley Cups in each of his first two seasons with Pittsburgh in 2016 and '17.

Derek Grant was signed by the Penguins following a breakout season in Anaheim last year that saw him score 12 times and total 24 points in 66 games. Grant and Cullen are two of six centers the Penguins have signed to one-way contracts, giving the team enviable depth down the middle. The other centers are Sidney Crosby, Evgeni Malkin, Derick Brassard and Riley Sheahan.

Pittsburgh dipped into the Finnish League SM-liiga to add 24-year-old defenseman Juuso Riikola via a one-year contract. Riikola played for Finland at the 2018 World Championship. Among the players Pittsburgh lost from last year were forwards Conor Sheary, Tom Kuhnhackl and Carter Rowney, plus defenseman Matt Hunwick. Sheary and Kuhnhackl won back-to-back Cups in '16 and '17, while Rowney was a key depth player on the '17 championship team.

2017-18 RECAP

The Pittsburgh Penguins (47-29-6) used a strong second-half finish to crack the 100-point mark for the 12th time in club history. By doing so, the Pens locked up their 12th-straight playoff berth, setting a new club record in that category.

Pittsburgh's 12-consecutive playoff appearances represents the longest active postseason streak among all NHL teams.

The Pens have now hit the 100-point mark nine times in the 11 full seasons during their playoff streak (excludes the lockout campaign). Since the streak began in 2006-07, the Pens have more wins (561) and points (1,215) than any NHL team. San Jose sits in second place in both categories with 548 and 1,200, respectively.

The Penguins defeated their cross-state rival, the Philadelphia Flyers, 4-2, in the opening round of the playoffs. Pittsburgh saw its franchise-record-tying streak of nine-straight playoff series victories and its back-to-back championship reign come to a close when the Washington Capitals won the Second Round series between the teams, 4-2. The Caps went on to win their first-ever Stanley Cup.

SECOND HALF RUN

The Penguins enjoyed another second-half surge in 2017-18, the third-straight year under head coach Mike Sullivan that the Penguins have ranked among the NHL's top teams in the final 41 games. In 2017-18, the Penguins went 27-11-3 in the second half, tying them for the third-highest point total in that span among all NHL teams.

A chief reason for the improved win-loss record was a return to the Penguins' high-scoring ways. The Penguins scored at least three goals in 33 of the 41 games (27-3-3 when doing so) and they had five or more tallies 17 times (16-1 record).

POWER PLAY SETS RECORD

Knocking Mario Lemieux and Jaromir Jagr off the top of any list is not easy, but that's exactly what last year's power-play unit did. Led by Sidney Crosby, Evgeni Malkin and Phil Kessel, the Penguins finished the 2017-18 campaign with a league-best 26.2% power-play conversion rate, establishing a franchise single-season record. The previous record of 26.0% was held by the 1995-96 club featuring Lemieux and Jagr.

Since '95-96, only the Washington Capitals have converted at a higher rate (26.8%) during the 2012-13 lockout season. The Pens' 26.2% success rate was the NHL's best figure over a full season since the then-defending Stanley Cup champion Calgary Flames posted a 27.7% success rate in 1989-90.

Kessel quarterbacked the top unit, leading all NHL players with a career-high 42 power-play points (12G-30A). He was followed closely by Crosby (9G-29A) and Malkin (14G-24A), who each finished with 38 power-play points, tying each other for third in the NHL. Patric Hornqvist paced the club with a career-high 15 man-advantage tallies, tying him for third in the league.

MALKIN NAMED MVP

Evgeni Malkin enjoyed his healthiest campaign since 2011-12, and the result was one of the best seasons of his NHL career. Malkin ended the regular season ranked fourth in the NHL with 98 points and fourth with 42 goals. He was the only NHL player to finish in the top-five in both categories.

A 40-goal scorer for the third time, Malkin averaged the third-most goals (0.54) and fourth-most points (1.26) in the NHL last year.

Beginning on Jan. 1, Malkin led the NHL with 28 goals, and his 62 points trailed only NHL scoring champ Connor McDavid, who had 63. He was the NHL's 'First Star' for January, and the 'Second Star' of February.

Malkin joined the 900-point club with his goal on Feb. 17 against Toronto, then less than a month later, he recorded his 919th point on Mar. 11 versus Dallas to become the fifth-highest scoring Russian of all-time.

Malkin was named the Penguins' team MVP for the fourth time, joining Mario Lemieux (12 times), Sidney Crosby (7) and Jaromir Jagr (4) as the only four-time winners in club history.

BEST OF THE BEST

Captain Sidney Crosby followed up back-to-back Conn Smythe Trophies by maintaining his standing as the top all-around player in the NHL. Pittsburgh's leader at both ends of the rink, Crosby skated in all 82 games for the first time, once again ending the campaign ranked inside the NHL's top-10 scorers.

The Penguins took off as a team in January, and not surprisingly, that's when Crosby hit his offensive stride. Crosby led all NHL players that month in both assists (18) and points (21). He also ran off a career-high 11-game assist streak (Jan. 5-Feb. 2) that ended up being the longest of the season by any player.

Another sign of Crosby's dominance came during a pair of five-game multiple point runs, which equaled the longest multi-point streaks of his career. He first accomplished that feat between Nov. 24-Dec. 2 (6G-6A-12PTS), then he matched it from Jan. 5-17 (3G-10A-13PTS).

Crosby joined the 400-goal club with his tally on Feb. 11 in St. Louis. Three weeks later, he became the 62nd player in NHL history to record 1,100 points when he had three assists at Philadelphia on Mar. 7.

From an all-time franchise perspective, Crosby moved into second place on the Penguins' all-time points list when he notched his 1,080th point on Jan. 25 against Minnesota.

PHIL THE THRILL

Phil Kessel not only ended the regular season ranked inside the NHL's top-10 scorers, but he also produced one of the best seasons by an American-born player in the salary cap era. His 92 points represented a career high, and they allowed him to lead all Americans in scoring. Since 2005-06, only Patrick Kane (106 points in 2015-16) and Zach Parise (94 points in 2008-09) have produced more points in a single-season among U.S.-born skaters.

Kessel accomplished his career year in a remarkably consistent fashion. He had six point streaks of five or more games on his way to scoring more goals (34), assists (58) and points (92) than each of his previous two seasons in a Penguins sweater. His 58 assists established a career high, besting his total of 47 set last year.

In addition to leading all Americans in points, he finished the year tied for the third-most goals, and also had the third-most assists.

As usual, Kessel was on the ice for his teammates every night, suiting up for all 82 games (692 straight games). He was joined in that feat by Sidney Crosby, Jake Guentzel and Olli Maatta. That marked the eighth-straight year that Kessel has played in all of his team's games.
